Many states, including Washington, have passed laws mandating that Medicaid and private insurers cover diagnosis and treatment of Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) and related disabilities, which includes Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA). But what is ABA? Who provides the services? How do families access treatment?

This presentation will provide background on ABA and autism, how treatment is provided, new laws and legislation, as well as the qualifications of those who provide treatment.

PARTICIPANTS WILL LEARN...

- What Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) is
- The pathway of care for ABA
- About insurance reform in WA state
- Resources and services in our region

Dana Stevens is the Director of Outreach and Interprofessional Development at Northwest Autism Center, a non-profit organization located in Spokane, WA.

Dana became a Board Certified Behavior Analyst (BCBA) in 2003. She has written several professional publications and speaks at the local, state, and national levels.

From 2007-2012, Dana was a tenure-track faculty member at Whitworth University, in which she taught undergraduate and graduate courses in Special Education. She also participates on several local and state committees, workgroups, advisory boards, and federal grants.
Many states, including Washington, have passed laws mandating that Medicaid and private insurers cover diagnosis and treatment of Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) and related disabilities, which includes Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA). But what is ABA? Who provides the services? How do families access treatment?

This presentation will provide background on ABA and autism, how treatment is provided, new laws and legislation, as well as the qualifications of those who provide treatment.

PARTICIPANTS WILL LEARN...

- What Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) is
- The pathway of care for ABA
- About insurance reform in WA state
- Resources and services in our region

---

Dana Stevens is the Director of Outreach and Interprofessional Development at Northwest Autism Center, a non-profit organization located in Spokane, WA. Dana became a Board Certified Behavior Analyst (BCBA) in 2003. She has written several professional publications and speaks at the local, state, and national levels.

From 2007-2012, Dana was a tenure-track faculty member at Whitworth University, in which she taught undergraduate and graduate courses in Special Education. She also participates on several local and state committees, workgroups, advisory boards, and federal grants.

RSVP

by Friday, Mar. 2nd
to Emily Himmelright
ehimmelright@nwautism.org or call 509-328-1582

TRAINING PROVIDED BY

www.nwautism.org